FOREWORD

The 1990 Election Financing Fact Book is published by the Washington State Public Disclosure Commission pursuant to its authority as contained in RCW 42.17.370(2) to publish reports and statistics concerning campaign financing so that such information may be fully disclosed to the public.

Material in this book is based on reports as filed by candidates and political committees, most of them unaudited. Every effort has been made to assure accuracy of calculations in compiling the statements in this book.

The state PDC reports due on January 10, 1991, showing activity through the last day of 1990, are included in this analysis. Any contributions or expenditures reported after that time are not included.

The lists of major contributors to candidates and committees are derived from the reports filed by the recipients rather than from reports by the contributing entities.

CONDITION OF RELEASE

This publication constitutes a "list of individuals" prepared by the Washington State Legislature and may not be used for commercial purposes [see RCW 42.17.260(5) and AGO 1975 No. 15]. This list is provided on the condition and with the understanding that the person receiving it agrees to the statutory imposed limitation on its use.

The Financing of Legislative Campaigns -- 1990

The 286 candidates for the Washington State Legislature in 1990 reported receiving more than $12.5 million in campaign contributions. This sum included $463,276 carried over from previous campaigns and $276,961 of the candidates' own money.

Listed in the section on major contributors to legislative candidates are those who made contributions of $150 or more to any candidate. Over 13,000 such contributions were recorded, amounting to $9,465,000, or about 75% of the total that the candidates had available to spend on their campaigns. Approximately 52,100 contributions of under $150 provided candidates with $2,325,000.

HOLDOVER SENATORS

Twenty of the Washington state senators elected in 1988 for four-year terms received contributions and made expenditures from their campaign funds during 1989 and 1990. Not counting the $151,742 in surplus funds from their last campaigns, these incumbent senators have raised about $336,000 through December 1990 and have spent about $315,000.

More than half their expenditures—$186,000—have gone to assist other candidates or political committees. The following table lists those holdover senators who have reported some financial activity, showing their total receipts and expenditures, with columns showing the dollar amounts carried forward from the 1988 campaign and the amounts contributed to other candidates and political committees.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTION AND EXPENDITURE ANALYSIS

The preceding pages of this report list the totals of contributions and expenditures as reported by each legislative candidate through the end of 1990. The following sections go a bit deeper into the reports to show something about the composition of those totals for the candidates who were on the general election ballot in 1990 and who did not use the mini or abbreviated reporting options.

"Contributions" as reported by a campaign may include some receipts that are not, strictly speaking, campaign contributions. And all expenditures made from a candidate's campaign fund are not necessarily directed at the election efforts of the candidate. These analyses give some indication of the extent of these non-campaign receipts and expenditures.

Included within a total contributions figure may be such income as the following: refunds from vendors, interest earned on deposits, surplus money from a prior campaign, and money contributed by a candidate to that person's own campaign fund. If the treasurer follows the suggestions of the PDC reporting instructions, refunds will show as adjustments and will not inflate either the contribution or expenditure totals. The Campaign Contribution Analysis table that follows does show for each candidate the amounts carried forward from previous campaigns, the amounts of a candidate's personal funds donated to the campaign, and the amount of interest reported.

On the expenditure side, new legislation effective early in 1990 requires legislative and state candidates to show on their reports some breakdown of their expenditures according to the following categories: (1) campaign expenses, (2) non-reimbursed public office-related expenses, (3) transfers to other candidates or committees, and (4) other expenditures of surplus funds. For many incumbents, this reporting provision went into effect after their campaign financial activity had started, and they were not required to go back and provide a breakdown of expenditures previously reported (some incumbents did so, voluntarily). The Campaign Expenditure Analysis table shows the totals reported as transfers to other candidates, office-related expenses, and other non-campaign expenditures. A "campaign balance" column was computed by subtracting those three sums from the reported total of expenditures.

The PDC's data base of major contributors includes all contributions of $150 or more. The Contribution Analysis table shows the total amount of such contributions for each general election candidate. The total that each candidate received in contributions less than $150 was computed by subtracting carryover funds, candidate's own funds, interest, and major contributions from the reported total of contributions.

Begin Date. For each candidate the Contribution Analysis table also shows the month when that candidate first reported receipts or expenditures in connection with a 1990 legislative candidacy. The average begin date for senate incumbents was October 1988 (two years before the election) and for house incumbents, July 1989. Average begin date for non-incumbents was May 1990, 6 months before the election.

Who Gave to the Major PAC Contributors

The top 40 contributors to legislative candidates listed on page 40 of this publication combined to give $4,696,075 to those candidates--approximately 40% of the new money received by the candidates during their 1990 campaigns.

Within that group of top contributors are 19 business and professional political action committees, 7 labor organizations, 7 corporations, the Democratic and Republican state party committees, the 4 campaign committees formed by the Democratic and Republican senate caucuses, and the campaign accounts of 3 legislative leaders.

To shed even more light on the sources of campaign financing, this section identifies those who gave to some of the biggest givers: the contributors who played a significant role in financing legislative campaigns through contributions to PACs, parties and caucuses. The 30 committees highlighted in this section include those whose records showed them to be the most active in 1988 as measured by the dollars given to legislative campaigns as well as three additional committees who were not among the top 40 in 1988: Washington Chiropractic Trust, SODA PAC, and the Committee for the Wise Use of Energy.

Contributors listed are those who gave a total of $150 or more to a committee during the 1989 and 1990 calendar years.

The committees whose major funding sources are shown in this section include:

reverse directory

The Reverse Directory

The Reverse directory is an index that compiles in a single list all of the contributors found in the other sections of this Fact Book where major contributors to individual candidates, initiative committees, and political committees are listed. The directory is an alphabetical listing of the names of those individuals and organizations that gave contributions of $150 or more to at least three of the candidates or committees included in this book on the the 1990 campaigns, and whose total of such contributions reached at least $1,000.

For each such contributor the directory shows the contributor's name, the recipients, and the amounts donated to each. The information was compiled from the contributor reports filed by candidates for the state supreme court or for the state legislature as well as by the Democratic and Republican state parties, the four legislative caucus campaign committees, the most active political action committees, and committees supporting or opposing Initiative 547.
